

The Havre Weekly Chronicle

Serving Havre and Hill County since 1914

MAT's 'The Harvest' to show in Havre before going to NYC

Tim Leeds | Last updated Oct 16, 2025 9:42pm 0

Montana Actors' Theatre

People have a chance to preview a play written by Montana Actors' Theatre co-founder Jay Pyette that soon will preview in New York City.

Pyette's "The Harvest," which is set on a small Montana wheat farm and revolves around the family dynamics of six adult children who come together from across the U.S. to help with the harvest after their father becomes too sick to run the farm, has been picked up by Manhattan Repertory Theatre and will run in New York in November.

But the play will run in Havre starting this week, sponsored by Northern View Wealth Management, with productions Oct. 22-25 7:30 and p.m. Oct. 25-26 at 3 p.m. in Little Theatre downstairs in Cowan Hall. People should use Cowan Hall's west entrance to get to the theater.

All seats are $20 with "Half Price Wednesday" when purchased in advance.

The production - Pyetter persuaded Manhattan Repertory Theater that having MAT do the show would bring more to the production - features some of the original actors when the play premiered in Havre in 2022 and some new actors, with Pam Veis as Anna, TC Knutson as James, Dr. Grant Olson as Alan, Brian Gregoire as Micky, Tylyn Turner as Sarah, Chad Zuelke as John, Aylan Pratt as Samuel and Samantha Pollington as June.

The play opens in Manhattan at the Chain Theatre, 312 West 36th St., Fourth Floor, Manhattan, New York, Nov. 6.

It opens at 7 p.m. Nov. 6-8, 12-15 and 19-22 at 7 p.m. with shows at 3 p.m. Nov. 8-9, 15-16 and 22.